

Content

1 Introduction	9
2 The MultiGradeMultiLevel-Methodology and its Ladders of Learning	11
2.1 History and Growth of the RIVER-Projects	11
2.1.1 Regional Location in India	11
2.1.2 Educational Practice and Philosophy by Jiddu Krishnamurti	13
2.1.3 The Rishi Valley School and the Rishi Valley Education Centre	15
2.1.4 The Rishi Valley Institute for Educational Resources, RIVER	19
2.2 Learning with Ladders of Learning	26
2.2.1 The MGML-Methodology as Initial Situation	26
2.2.2 Material Pool for Learning Activities	29
2.2.3 'Milestones' – Systematized Learning Sequences	31
2.2.4 Ladders of Learning and Their Variations	32
2.2.5 Mixed-age Group Formation with an Integrated Support System	33
2.2.6 Evaluation of Progress and the Pupils' Success	35
2.2.7 Spatial Structure of the One-Room School	37
2.2.8 Time Structures in the MGML-Methodology	47
2.2.9 Cultural Components of Design	52
2.2.10 Ecological Components of Design	59
2.3 Teaching in the MGML-Methodology	62
2.3.1 Being a Teacher in India	62
2.3.2 The Roles and Tasks of Teachers in the MGML-Methodology	64
2.3.3 Preparing the Learning Environment	65
2.3.4 Observing and Giving Advice and Support	66
2.3.5 Documenting and Reflecting	68
2.3.6 Attitude	68
2.4 Teacher Training with RIVER	70
2.4.1 Exploration Workshop	71
2.4.2 First Testing and Contemplation	73
2.4.3 Designer Workshop	74
2.4.4 Second Testing through Supervision	76
2.4.5 References	76
3 Cultures of Learning in the 21st Century	78
3.1 Schooling in the Context of Global Developments	78
3.1.1 Exclusion – a globally multifaceted process	81
3.1.2 Historical Transformations and their Impact on Today's Children and Youth	86
3.1.3 Identity within the Term of Global Change	90
3.1.4 Education as a Global Issue	91
3.2 Life in the Horizon of an Integral Educational Practice	93
3.2.1 Collectively Living in Uncertainty	96
3.2.2 Concreation – Integral Participation within the Interconnection of the Single in the Whole	98
3.2.3 Scientific foundations	99

3.3 Aspects of a Culture of Learning in the 21st Century.	100
3.3.1 Situation – Event – Experience	102
3.3.2 Bodily Learning – Performativity	104
3.3.3 Individuality and Concreativity	106
3.3.4 Activity and Self-Responsibility	108
3.3.5 References	112
4 Variations in Learning with Ladders of Learning, teaching with MGML	116
4.1 Indian and International Variations	116
4.1.1 Variations in Primary Education	117
4.1.2 Variations in Secondary Education	121
4.1.3 International Variations Using the Examples of Ethiopia and Nepal	124
4.2 German Variations and the Multifaceted Quality of their Applicability	127
4.2.1 Developments in Primary School – selected examples	127
4.2.2 Developments in Secondary Education – selected examples	138
4.2.3 Developments in Special-needs Schools – selected examples	145
4.3 The MGML-Methodology's flexibility in its International Importance	148
4.3.1 Best-Practice-Examples	148
4.3.2 A Change in Approach: From Teaching to Learning	149
4.3.3 Types of Ladders of Learning	149
4.3.4 Components for the Preparation of Material	151
4.3.5 References	154
5 Consequences and Perspectives	156
5.1 Building Skills for the MGML-Methodology in Teacher Training	156
5.1.1 Research on the MGML-Methodology	164
5.2 International and Global perspectives	168
5.2.1 Pedagogy for street children education and MGML-Methodology	168
5.2.2 International Cooperation on the Variations of the MGML-Methodology	174
5.2.3 MGML-Methodology: Global Education and Global Significance	177
5.2.4 References	180
6 Growing and Flowering with the MGML-Methodology	182
7 Works Cited	185